Rice silo owner faces lawsuit

A lawsuit over the accidental death of a 13-year old local girl in January has named the property owner as a defendant. The city of West Sacramento has not been accused of negligence by the lawsuit.

West Sacramento middle school student Heidi Ubrick died while visiting a South River Road abandoned rice mill with two juvenile friends, and her body was not found until a week later. She had fallen head first through a hole in the floor inside the mill.

HEIDI UBRICK

Rick Edson, attorney for the Ubrick family, said a lawsuit has been filed in Sacramento County Superior Court asking unspecified damages for negligence on the part of the landowner, the Scanvik Corp., which is a subsidiary of a Norwegian insurance firm.

Edson said he had toured the site before it was demolished by a wrecking ball this summer.

"I've never seen anything that dangerous," he said. "All the floors had open holes that went down five stories."

Edson maintains that the silo buildings were regularly used by both transients and juveniles, and the landowner had been notified of its danger as an "attractive nuisance" by the city's police and fire departments.

"If anyone should be aware of the risks," said Edson, "it's an insurance company."

McCuen Properties -- the former owner of the site -- was also named in the lawsuit. Edson said he had not yet determined if McCuen Properties had a current business relationship with Scanvik involving the property.

A Scanvik spokesman referred comment to an attorney, who could not immediately be reached for comment.

West Sacramento throws a party

Channel 31's Mark S. Allen chosen to serve as parade grand marshal

This weekend will be a time for festivities in downtown West Sacramento.

The city's first attempt at hosting the International Rice Festival will take place both Saturday and sunday on Merkley Ave. between Jefferson and West Capitol. Rice based food will be celebrated (including cooking competitions), and there will be educational exhibits related to the rice industry. The event is sponsored by the West Sacramento Downtown Association.

Although rice is not grown in West Sacramento, it is stored in town and exported through the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento. The town of Gridley in the Northern Sacramento Valley used to hold an annual rice festival, but discontinued it.

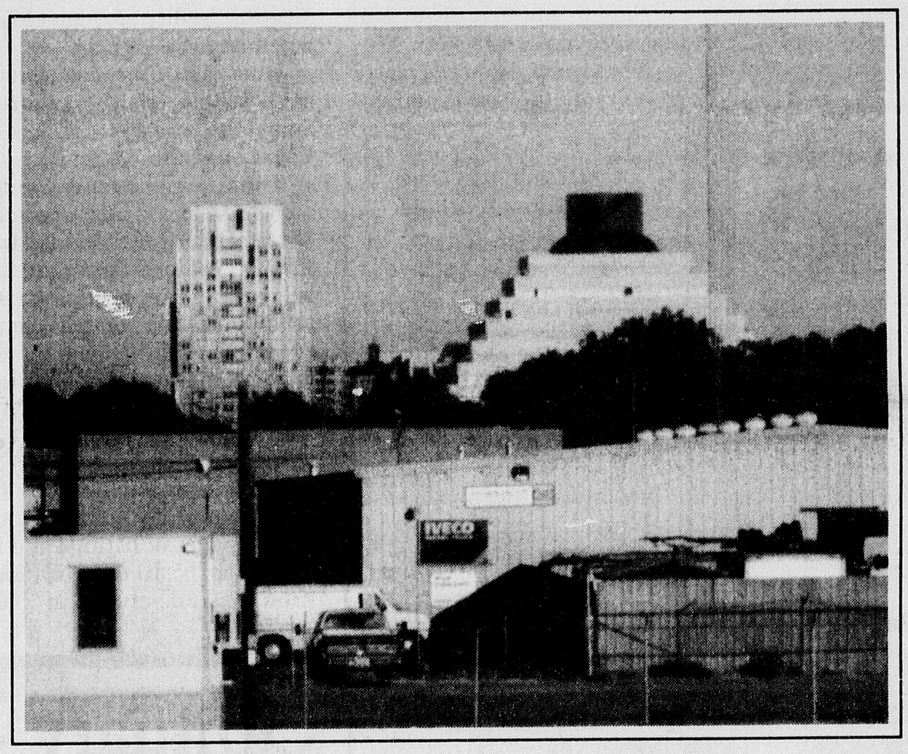
A "Midway of Fun" carnival has already set up and will be open for business today through the end of the weekend's events. The carnival is located along West Capitol Ave. between Merkley and Jefferson.

Near the end of the rice festival, West Capitol Ave. will play host to the 22nd annual Community Day Parade, which begins at 1 p.m. on Sunday. The parade will travel its traditional route, eastward from the Harbor Blvd. direction along West Capitol Ave. to finish at the rice festival location.

The Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that it had signed Mark S. Allen of Channel 31's television station to serve as grand marshal for the parade.

Spectators may view the parade from along West Capitol Ave.

Now it's finished



Well, not quite.

Through a trick of perspective, West Sacramento's new Money Store building under construction on the riverfront appears to have a top it wasn't designed to have.

The light-colored, pyramid-shaped building actually ends with a flat-top.

This particular view should please at least one amateur critic, quoted in a recent Sacramento Bee column as saying the Money Store building (which dominates the view from the "Old Sacramento" side of the river) looked incomplete without a top.

Filling the vacancy:

Special election not likely, says Westvik

By Steve Marschke

School board president Ardeen Westvik said yesterday she expects the board to choose later this month whether to appoint someone to fill the soon-to-be vacant seat of board member Nancy Thompson-Candee by appointment, or to hold a special election.

"We probably won't have a special election because of the cost," she said.

Thompson-Candee announced her resignation last week, effective in 60 days. She cited a need to free up time for her family.

Her position on the Washington Unified School District Board of Trustees is up for a regular election in November, 1998.

Linda Ford of the county elections department said the department has estimated the cost of a special election to fill the seat at roughly $25,000.

Also, if one-and-a-half percent of the district's registered voters were to sign a petition demanding a special election, one could be forced, said Ford.

"But we've never had that happen before for a board vacancy," added Ford.

'Shaken baby syndrome' suspect arrested

A local man has been charged with assaulting his three month old son after the child was hospitalized in critical condition on Sept. 15. The baby is recovering from his injuries.

"The baby is out of the hospital and is doing well," said Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department, adding that for a time the child was not expected to survive.

Charged in the alleged crime is Michael Pinon, a 25-year old resident of the 1800-block of West Capitol Ave. The Yolo County District Attorney's office is reviewing the case to see if charges are warranted against the boy's mother as well.

The baby was first brought to the hospital once on Sept. 14.

"The doctors released the child and gave some medication," said Farmer. "The following day, the child was taken back and admitted to the hospital, and doctors determined the injuries were the result of 'shaken baby syndrome'."

Good fire service may mean better insurance rates, city officials believe

From Melinda Posner

State Farm insurance plans to review 21 million records to determine which fire department protects each of its customers nationwide, and the result could change customer's rates. With the West Sacramento Fire Department's high fire protection rating, any change in customer rates will likely be for the better.

The city is rated by the Insurance Services Office (ISO) based on the level of fire protection provided by the local fire department. Fire departments are ranked on a scale of 1 to 10 with "1" being the best fire protection and "10" being virtually no fire protection at all. West Sacramento ranks as good or better than any community within the region with an ISO rating of "2." The ISO rating applies to areas of the city that are served by fire hydrants. The fire department is currently working to reduce the rating in the rural area of Southport. In the United States there are only about 25 communities that have been rated with the difficult-to-attain rating of "1."

The ISO rating is based on three main components: the communications system in place for reporting and responding to a fire; the fire department's capabilities -- based on the number and type of engines, how well same are tested and equipped, number and type of fire fighter (paid versus volunteer), and the type of training provided; and the community's water supply and system for distribution.

Prompted by enhanced technology from the ISO, State Farm will be able to make quick comparisons between a community's ISO rating and specific geographic areas. Previously it was up to individual agents to refer to a manual and make a determination as to the ISO rating for a particular location.

The review process is expected to begin in late 1997 and be completed by the end of 1998. If State Farm determines that

Feds may loan money for Yolo gravel mining plan

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is considering 30-year loan to the R.C. Collet corporation to buy land and prepare infrastructure for gravel mining in the Capay area near Cache Creek, in eastern Yolo County.

Opponents claim that this is a misuse of tax funds and an inappropriate risk for taxpayers to take.

Comments for or against the proposal may be sent to Michael reyna, State Director, at Rural Development, 194 W. Main St., Suite F, Woodland, CA 95695.

Departments serve arrest warrants to local juveniles

The West Sacramento Police Department's Youth Services Division and the Yolo County Probation Department conducted a juvenile warrant sweep in West Sacramento on Sept. 26.

Officers from both agencies served outstanding warrants which had been served by the juvenile court.

Seven arrests were made, according to a police press release.

Man shot on Citrus St., woman sought by police

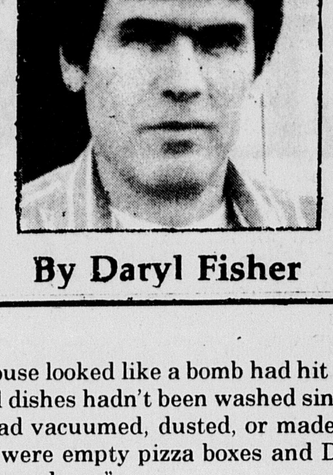
Police are seeking a female suspect in the shooting of a visiting Colorado man early Sunday morning following a party at a Citrus St. residence.

The shooting occurred at about 4:30 a.m. on Sunday. Victim Daniel Garcia, 32, was shot once in the back. and is in stable condition, said Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department.

According to a police report, a .22 caliber shell casing was found at the scene. Police have only a sketchy description of the suspect.

'Girls' night out' evolves into weekend out of state

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Once every year my wife eagerly jumps into a car with some of her girlfriends and speeds off to Ashland, Oregon to spend a whole weekend watching two or three William Shakespeare plays. They stay in a very fancy bed and breakfast inn, and when they're not being entertained by the ageless words and plots of history's greatest playwright, they go shopping, leisurely take in all the sights, or just lounge around in quaint little watering holes, sipping wine coolers and reflecting on how wonderful it is to have a few days just to themselves.

I, of course, am never invited. "It's a girls thing," my wife always assures me. "Plus you know you don't really like Shakespeare's plays anyway."

"But some of the soliloquies are okay," I said as she finished packing for this year's trip. "And his 116th sonnet should definitely be required reading for anyone who thinks falling in love is going to be a piece of cake."

"Well, maybe we'll take our husbands the next time," she lied. "And by the way, everything you'll need to feed the boys good, healthy meals for the next two nights and three days is already in the refrigerator, so there's no reason for anyone to starve to death like last year, okay?"

"Now don't you worry about anything," I assured her. "The kids and I are going to be just fine."

"Right," she said, obviously not believing a word of it. "That's what you said last year, and when I got back, the house looked like a bomb had hit it. The clothes and dishes hadn't been washed since I left, no one had vacuumed, dusted, or made a bed, and there were empty pizza boxes and Dr. Pepper cans everywhere."

Anyway, my wife hadn't left West Sacramento in the dust for more than a few hours when my three sons began demanding to know what they were going to be served for dinner. "Your mother said everything we need is in the icebox," I told them confidently.

"But all this stuff needs to be cooked!" cried out my oldest son after he had stuck his head in the refrigerator and poked around inside for a few minutes.

"Can't we nuke any of it?" my middle son asked hopefully.

"Hey, I've got an idea," eagerly interjected my oldest son. "The Red Lobster restaurant is having a big special this weekend. You can get a complete lobster dinner for only 15 bucks. That's about half what it normally costs. Why don't we just go out there for dinner tonight? Mom said she wanted us eating better this time, didn't she?"

"But I don't think she meant full course lobster dinners," I said. "Plus I don't have that kind of cash on me."

"Isn't that what this is for?" asked my middle son with a big grin as he held up the credit card my wife had left us in case of an emergency.

"No," I said emphatically, "now we're not going out to dinner when there's an icebox full of perfectly good food in the kitchen. I'll just go cook us up something. It shouldn't take too long."

The words were barely out of my mouth when they all suddenly bolted out the front door and began hastily making their way towards my son's car. "Hey," I yelled after them, "where are you going?"

"To Whitey's Jolly-Kone!" they yelled back in unison.

The next morning, around nine o'clock, when they all finally decided to crawl out of bed, my youngest son, Kyle, strolled over to me and announced, "Me and Anthony (his best friend who had spent the night with him) are going to make our own breakfast today, okay, Dad?"

"Now that's exactly the kind of attitude to have," I said, patting him proudly on the shoulder. "You two just go right ahead. There's cereal and fruit and all kinds of really good, healthy stuff to eat around here."

A few minutes later, when my two oldest sons staggered out of their rooms and began to make their way into the kitchen, I said, "You know, it's too bad you guys aren't more like your little brother."

"Why's that?" they asked with surprise.

"Well, because he just volunteered to make his own breakfast this morning. He knows that breakfast is the most important meal of the day and that we all have to pitch in around here until your mother gets back. She would be very proud of him right now."

"But I think she just might want to shoot you," said my oldest son from the kitchen.

"Why's that?" I asked him.

"Because Kyle and Anthony are in here eating ice cream push-up bars for breakfast!"

"Giants Win the Pennant! Giants Win the Pennant!"

Well, actually, they won the Western Division title, their first N.L. West crown since 1989. They travel to Florida (92-70) starting Tuesday to play the Marlins in the best-of-five series. The Giants (90-72), the last of eight teams to qualify for the playoffs, are the fourth team this century to go from last place to first place in one year!

Did you know the Giants have three players with 100 RBI? 2B Jeff Kent, 1B J.T. Snow and LF Barry Bonds -- the first time since 1947! The first two games of the series are in Florida with the third game at 3Com Park on Friday night (5:00 p.m.) If the Giants can win at least one game in Florida, they can win this series. Games four and five, if necessary, would be Saturday and Sunday in San Francisco. The Giants will win in five games!

GO Giants!

The rest of the best of five divisional playoffs are set and the Braves should take care of the Astros in three games. In the A.L., the Indians will lose to the Yankees in five and Baltimore will beat up Seattle's bullpen, even though they set a major league record this year with 264 home runs. Did you know that Baltimore's Cal Ripken Jr. has played in 2,476 consecutive games! The Orioles will win in four games!

The 49ers head into their bye week with a two-game lead on the Carolina Panthers after their easy 34-21 victory on Monday night. No key injuries and their offense is in cruise control. On the other hand, the Raiders had to come from behind to beat the St. Louis Rams 35-17. The Raiders trailed the Rams 14-0 in the first quarter, but Jeff George threw four touchdown passes to lead the Raiders (2-3) to victory. Next Sunday at 1 p.m., the Raiders host the San Diego Chargers (2-3). This game will probably not sell out and will be black out the Sacramento area.

Shutout win for midget footballers

From the West Sacramento Bears

The West Sacramento Jr. Midget Bears continued their drive towards a post-season play-off berth as they shut out the Highlands Wolfpack and their potent offense, 33 to 0. The win gives the Bears a 3-1 overall record and sets up a showdown next Saturday with the always tough Sacramento Vikings.

Steven Stephens led off the scoring for the Bears with a 15-yard touchdown run on their first possession of the game to lead 6 to 0. West Sac's defense forced a punt on Highlands' next drive, and Stephens ran it back 40 yards for the touchdown. Richard Alpers' kick for the P.A.T. made the score 14 to 0.

The Bears struck again just before halftime, with Nick Van Dyke hitting Zeke Butcher on a 40-yard scoring pass as the horn sounded. Jamahl Mackey ran in the P.A.T. behind fine blocks from Matt Stephan and Kenny Baker to give West Sac a 21 to 0 lead.

Highlands attempted to bounce back early in the second half. An interception return appeared headed for a touchdown until Butcher finally caught the runner from behind at the Bears' 8-yard line. But the defense held firm, and following a Josh Bush quarterback sack, Keith Fallon recovered a fumble on West Sac's own 3-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Butcher burst up the middle, cut to the outside and outran the entire Wolfpack defense on a spectacular 97-yard touchdown run to extend the lead to 27-0.

Sammy Acevedo garnered the final Bears touchdown early in the fourth quarter, following crushing blocks from David Breese, Rhett Stenback and Michael Bone to score from 3 yards out.

The Bears' defense, led by David Maldonado, Bush, Michael Fonbuena, Butcher and Rob Washington, continually stymied the Wolfpack's vaunted passing game and "provided the key plays to win the game," according to West Sac's defensive coordinator, Warren Golubski.

Not to be outdone, the Bears' offense amassed over 400 total yards, led by Butcher with 217 yards rushing and receiving and Stephen's 123 yards on the ground, behind a fine offensive line led by Adrian Romero, Tommy Guerra and Jerry Harris.

Junior Varsity Shuts Out Vanden

In the first quarter and half of the second quarter, R.C. and Vanden sea-sawed back and forth. With 4:59 left in the second quarter, R.C. broke it open on a 13-yard run by Robert Cervantes, who ran the conversion to lead, 8 to 0. With 3:15 left on a quarterback keeper, Brooks Marino scored from one yard out and the run failed to lead, 14 to 0. With 2:02 left in the first half on an end around T.J. OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Bits & pieces

Good luck to the West Sacramento Downtown Association in its first annual "International Rice Festival," to be held -- where else -- but in West Sacramento's downtown.

The festival lasts both days of the weekend, as is designed to celebrate rice while bringing foot traffic to the downtown business area. The festival was organized in a hurry and on a limited budget, but will probably be a success nevertheless.

Good luck also, to county tax collector Clyde K. Brooker at his new job as chief executive officer of the Yolo Federal Credit Union.

But an eyebrow or two must go up as Mr. Brooker goes out.

In the press release announcing his departure, paid for with tax dollars on county stationery, Mr. Brooker manages to get in a pretty good commercial for his new employer, where members "enjoy the benefits offered including very competitive checking, savings, loans and other services."

"Yolo Credit Federal Union has branches in Woodland, Davis, West Sacramento, Winters and soon in Sycamore Point in East Woodland," the County of Yolo press release finishes.

Call now. Operators are standing by.

Addendum to the school board situation:

Board member Nancy Thompson-Candee will step down in a couple of months, leaving a seat unfilled until after the election in November, 1998.

The board will choose to fill the vacancy with an appointment or to call for an expensive special election.

An appointment is the cheaper and quicker alternative. But as one resident points out, the appointed person will then get the artificial advantage of an un-earned incumbency when it comes time for next year's election. So it would be fairer for the board to appoint someone with no interest in running in '98, so as not to bias the coming election.

Any takers?

Pro West-Sac

I loved the commentary in last week's News-Ledger by Michael Gorman. It was high time someone wrote it. Bravo! Mr. Gorman.

He is so right about how biased the Sacramento Bee, residents of Sacramento and Mr. Joe Serna are about West Sacramento.

At one time we (W. Sac) were a main route into Sacramento, the capitol of this Golden State.

Maybe our part of town was not the greatest, but remember Capitol Mall (known then as M Street) was run down with burlesque clubs, chicken shacks, run-down buildings. It was then a part of Sacramento's skid row. And it led right into where the Capitol Building was and still is. It is now a beautiful thoroughfare true, with many high-rise buildings and "old town" restored but it took many years to get it looking like it does now.

So! Mr. Serna, the Bee, and all the uppity people across the river from us -- give us a chance and stand back and watch us!

Someday we may well be a power to be reckoned with!!

Remember that Rome and the pyramids were not built in one day.

We can boast that we will soon have our first pyramid (the Money Store). I for one admire it very much and when it is completed and the parkways along our side of the river, it will be a sight to behold! So stay tuned! There will be more to follow!

As to my cancelling my subscription to the Bee, I don't need to do that since I have never subscribed! Who needs it? We have the News-Ledger here!

Anti-Connerly

Bill Fairbairn, the new Director of the Chamber of Commerce, says he is proud to announce that Ward Connerly will be the featured speaker at the next General Membership luncheon on Oct. 9. He describes Connerly as a "great speaker" and praises him for leading the search and destroy mission known as Prop. 209. Connerly's pathetic claim to fame is axing programs which allowed women and minorities for the first time in history to compete on a level playing field. What a hero.

Ward Connerly has been hoist on his own petard since he hitched his wagon to Wilson's star. But he is in for a crash landing in '98 when the big peter leaves office (thank God and Greyhound, he'll finally be gone).

For now, Connerly has a pretty slick set-up. He's become a millionaire using his own minority status (via affirmative action) to snare govt. contracts managing federal grants. Could this be why he was recently caught in some hasty backpeddeling saying "it may be necessary to maintain affirmative action programs in awarding private contracts"?? If affirmative action is still good for the goose, why not the gander (never mind that the gander still only makes 74 cents on the dollar for doing the same job as the big stupid goose).

The City of West Sacramento still has 95 percent of its community development and social service grants passing under the Connerly & Assoc. umbrella. His company is instrumental in funneling taxpayers money into private business in order to accomplish the goals of various grants. If Connerly sits smugly holdings hands with Wilson and playing footsie with both the City and the Chamber under the table, it just looks too cozy.

I'm not suggesting any political chicanery or actual conflict of interest on the City side. Our Councilmen and city officials come across as a trop of aging Eagle Scouts; it's obvious they are not in it for the money (just some masochistic sense of duty). But perceptions do count because citizens rely on the govt. for business regulation and consumer protection.

As far as attending the luncheon (which is open to the public) I have previously heard Connerly speak. I'm not saying he is a fatuous bore but I would rather eat lunch watching an autopsy. I will try to compile a list of the local business people that support Connerly's republican agenda. That way I'll know which stores and businesses to avoid patronizing in the future. I hope other Democrats will join me in this protest by boycott.

Gravel mining subsidy?

Do the residents of West Sacramento want to subsidize businesses with their tax money? Essentially that is the question now being decided by the Rural Development agency of the Department of Agriculture as it considers granting help to one of the gravel mining companies on Cache Creek. Unable, apparently, to borrow money to buy the land and to set up the gravel mining operations (new deep pit dredging of off-channel gravel beds) with its own credit, the company will be able to borrow close to four and one-half million dollars with our taxpayers' guarantee. West Sacramento residents (or a majority of them) did not believe they cared about what happened regarding gravel mining in Western Yolo. This new development, reported in a legal advertisement in a Woodland paper, does have a public policy interest on which we should be heard.

Perhaps the Ledger can publish for us who is making the decision and how we can give input both on the changes in over 1,000 acres of Ag land in the project and "welfare" to a corporation?

Migrant centers

On Thursday, September 11, the Department of Housing and Community Development held a public hearing at the Davis Migrant Worker Center. On the agenda was a proposal to change the rules governing 26 migrant centers throughout California. Among the changes: a rule to prohibit vehicle maintenance or repair in the centers, and doubling the rents and deposits.

The families living in the centers speak very little English. Few of them were properly notified of the proposed changes. Most of the families that were notified were confused because the material they received was printed in English. Consequently, these families were denied the opportunity for a meaningful pubic hearing.

Even if the residents were fluent in English, it is doubtful that they would understand the inadequacy of the relevant documents or the importance of demonstrating that inadequacy. The materials contained a series of recommendations, but no analysis leading to those conclusions. There were not answers to such questions as: Is the proposed action necessary? What are our options? Which is the best option, and why? Only the potential consequences to local businesses were considered, not the consequences to the families living in the centers.

If, for example, a migrant center experienced difficulties with vehicle repairs (noise, waste disposal, unsightliness), it might consider providing a particular place in the center for doing repairs; with screening, time restrictions, proper disposal instructions, etc. This option could then be weighed against the costs or benefits or other options. But, the official document does not indicate that vehicle repairs are a problem, or that any action is necessary, and no alternatives to prohibiting vehicle repairs were considered -- it merely recommends stopping the practice. Such recommendations particularly disregard the consequences to those who can least afford the services of a mechanic. Likewise the recommendations to increase rents and deposits.

Regrettably, there were no elected representatives to speak on behalf of these families. No-one from a City Council, not one County Supervisor, no-one from an area is served by a fire department with a higher ISO rating than what was originally recorded when the policy was written, homeowners may be eligible for a rebate. Likewise, if it is determined that a geographic area is now served by fire protection services with a lower rating, policy holders will owe the insurance company.

Sincere incorporation, the city has improved its ISO rating. From 1983, when the city was served by the East Yolo Fire Protection District, through 1995 the ISO rating was "4." In 1995, the city's fire protection level increased to the city's current rating of "2." This was due to a variety of factors including a new 100-foot aerial ladder truck, response agreements with neighboring fire departments and improvements to the city water system.

Well-trained fire personnel (pictured here form left are Captain Jim Medich, firefighter Shawn Kite and engineer Rodney Beckwith) and new, updated equipment such as this 100-foot aerial ladder truck and are key factors in the city's improved ISO rating.

Individual policies will be reviewed as they come up for annual renewal. Homeowners should contact their local State Farm agent for more information.

Police log

Sept. 25, 12:45 p.m.

An officer was dispatched to Todhunter Ave. in response to a report of an auto theft. Two officers saw the vehicle leaving the area and, using lights, sirens and an air horn, attempted to get it to stop. The car ran a red light and entered U.S. 50, with speeds of up to 75 m.p.h., finally stopping on Highway 99 near 12th Ave.

An officer reported that the car belonged to the 20-year old Sacramento man driving it, but that the dispute involving it was a "civil matter." The driver was arrested on charges relating to the chase.

Sept. 28, 10:19 p.m.

In front of a laundramat, a man was reported to be bothering customers by talking to them about how high federal taxes are. A businessperson asked police to move him along. A police officer reported that the man was doing his laundry at the facility.

A 16-year old Arthur Dr. boy reported that subjects who were "good friends" from school entered his residence, removed $5 from his wallet, and fled.

Sept. 29, 1:57 a.m.

A 41-year old Sutter Ave. man was stopped by an officer for driving on the wrong side of the road. He appeared to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs, and a breath test showed a blood alcohol level of .11 (over the legal limit for presumed intoxication). He admitted having two beers, and was arrested.

Sept. 29, 2:05 a.m.

An officer stopped a vehicle for driving with a flat tire and dragging a tire. An open cotainer of an alcoholic beverage was found. The driver took a breath test which showed a .20 percent level of alcohol in his blood, and was arrested and released in the custody of his brother.

Sept. 29, 5:06 a.m.

A burglary was reported to an E St. business over the weekend. A jackhammer was taken, and a window of a pickup truck was broken.

A Harbor Blvd. business office reported a break-in over the weekend, with vandalism involved.

Sept. 29, 8:47 a.m.

Sept. 29, 9:05 a.m.

A Madrone Ave. woman said she had just been served (a legal summons) by her exfiance, and feared him. She requested an extra patrol in the area, and said he drove recklessly and without a license.

Buy a 'Bee,' help a kid

West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce official Steve Roberts is recruiting volunteers to help sell a "Kids Day Special Issue" of the Sacramento Bee on Tuesday, Oct. 7.

The special issue will sell for $1 and proceeds will help raise money for the Shriners Hospital, which offers free medical care to children in need.

"It's a little more than the cost of the Bee regularly," Roberts was quoted in a recent press release, "but the special issue comes with lots of money-saving coupons from Sacramento-area businesses, and all of the net proceeds will go to the Shriners Hospitals for Children in Northern California."

Roberts, who is not a Shriner, said that "any child who needs medical assistance for burns, spinal cord or orthopedic injuries, can get that help free at the Shriners Hospital."

He can be reached at the Chamber, 371-7042, by those who may be able to participate in the fundraiser. Roberts will sell the Bee from in front of West Sacramento's Raley's store on Tuesday.
